| 8  | Correction Number CP-1674   |  |
| 9  | Log Summary: Add Dermatology Anatomic Site Context Group and NYU Numbering System Coding Scheme   |  |
| 10 | Name of Standard  |  |
| 11 | PS3.3, PS3.16   |  |
| 12 | Rationale for Correction:   |  |
| 13 | Skin lesions are not well described by the current Annex L Body Part Examined anatomic codes.   |  |
| 14 | Many dermatologists use the existing New York University Melanoma Clinical Cooperative Group's numbering system. Another  |  |
| 15 | similar scheme derived from this is used by the Mayo Clinic.  |  |
| 16 | A group of dermatologists have recently developed a new hierarchical terminology, mapped where possible to SNOMED CT and  |  |
| 17 | NYU concepts, which they have contributed to WHO ICD11 as an Extension code set (Specific Anatomic Detail > Topography >  |  |
| 18 | Body Regions > Skin). Their hierarchy and mapping is published at http://anatomymapper.com/terms/ , and their approach is described |  |
| 19 | in a forthcoming article Kenneweg, KA, Halpern, AC, Chalmers RJG, Soyer, HP, Weichenthal, M, Molenda M. Developing an   |  |
| 20 | international standard for classification of surface anatomical location for use in clinical practice and epidemiological research. Journal                                       |  |
| 21 | of American Academy of Dermatology. In Press. The mapping in this CP has been cross-checked with their mapping and where  |  |
| 22 | possible made consistent. Further, where their new terminology includes additional (particularly more granular) concepts not in the   |  |
| 23 | NYU or Mayo systems, some (but not all) have been added to the new context group. There are some differences in the modeling  |  |
| 24 | approach. For example, the NYU terms for the fingers distinguish palmar and dorsal whereas the new hierarchical terminology does  |  |
| 25 | not; conversely, the segments (proximal, intermediate and distal phalanges) of the fingers are not defined in the NYU scheme yet  |  |
| 26 | are in the new hierarchical terminology, as are the perionychia. Not all of the new hierarchical terminology proposals have been  |  |
| 27 | incorporated in the ICD-11 extension (i.e., have codes), so for the time being, these are not included in the context group proposed  |  |
| 28 | here.   |  |
| 29 | Traditionally in DICOM, and in the new dermatology hierarchical terminology, laterality is post-coordinated, so the same approach   |  |
| 30 | is followed here. This leads to a higher yield of SNOMED CT mappings since laterality is rarely pre-coordinated in SNOMED CT by   |  |
| 31 | policy. To support the post-coordination of laterality, including the concept of the median (mid-line, as opposed to left or right) part  |  |
| 32 | of a structure, an extended version of the Laterality context group is also added.  |  |
| 33 | Code String CS values for Body Part Examined are not added since the Anatomic Region Sequence is expected to be used instead.   |  |
| 34 | [Ed.Note: Additional concepts for SNOMED CT-DICOM subset are in Request IDs 738584, 738585, 738586.]   |  |

Amend DICOM PS3.3 as follows (changes to existing text are bold and underlined for additions and ~~struckthrough~~ for removals):

A.32.4.3 VL Photographic Image IOD Content Constraints

A.32.4.3.1 Modality

The value of Modality (0008,0060) shall be XC.

A.32.4.3.2 Anatomic Region Sequence

For dermatology applications, the Baseline CID for Anatomic Region Sequence (0008,2218) is CID nnn1 “Dermatology Anatomic Sites”.

Note

- It is desirable to use more general standard coding schemes such as SNOMED CT whenever possible, to support interoperability across specialist domains, yet the numeric codes from the NYU and Mayo systems are well known to dermatologists. Multiple codes may be encoded in the image by using the equivalent code mechanism. See PS3.3 8.9 "Equivalent Code Sequence". Standard Coding Scheme Designators (NYUMCCG and MAYOASRG) are defined.
- SNOMED CT and FMA "skin of" or "mucosa of" specific concepts are used here when available, rather than the more generic "structure of" concepts; this sacrifices commonality with the anatomic regions used for more general applications, but is appropriate for dermatologic applications. E.g., (T-02508, SRT, "Skin of anus") is used instead of (T-59900, SRT, "Anal structure").
- The DICOM convention is to use "structure of" concepts rather than "entire" concepts when both are defined, and that convention is followed here. E.g., (T-02136, SRT, "Skin structure of lateral canthus") is used in preference to (T-0213D, SRT "Entire skin of lateral canthus").
- The illustrations of the NYU anatomy identify two separately numbered structures associated with the female urethral orifice; it is not clear what separate structure is identified (perhaps Skene's Glands (71648, FMA, "Lesser vestibular glands"), but in the absence of further information, it is assumed that NYUMCCG:504 refers to the urethral orifice and NYUMCCG:517 is ignored (i.e., not included in this Context Group).
- The illustrations of the NYU anatomy use female genitalia to show the genitocrural fold, but it is believed that the intent is to identify the region irrespective of sex, so (T-0104, SRT, "Groin skin crease") is used rather than (T-02512, SRT, "Skin of crurovulvar fold").
- There is some uncertainty regarding the distinction between the antitragus and the intertragal incisure and whether the latter is represented at all in the NYU and Mayo drawings. The more recent mapping decision of Kenneweg et al has been adopted here, even though the text meaning differs from that for the NYU and Mayo schemes.

- 1 7. There is some uncertainty regarding the distinction between the skin of the forehead and the frontal region of the scalp;
 2 (T-02104, SRT, "Skin of forehead") is used rather than (R-FB4E1, SRT, "Skin of frontal region of scalp"), even though
 3 the later would be more consistent with the other scalp regions (parietal, temporal and occipital).
- 4 8. Laterality is pre-coordinated in most of the NYU and Mayo codes, but by convention is factored out and encoded
 5 separately in DICOM. The appropriate modifiers are listed in CID nnn0 "Laterality with Median". The left and right mod-
 6 ifiers correspond to the NYU/Mayo columns labelled "L" and "R" in this context group table. An entry in the "M" column
 7 of this table means that the NYU or Mayo code is for a midline or unpaired structure or refers to the median part of a
